New Tancook vehicle ferry expected to enter service by early 2027

By YASMIN DUALE
yasmin.duale@southshorebulletin.ca

CHESTER - A new ferry connecting Big Tancook Island with the mainland may be in service as early as the end of December, following the expected arrival in Blandford at the end of November of a new boat carrying 18 vehicles.

Chester-St. Margaret's MLA Danielle Barkhouse says that the new ferry will be undergoing about four weeks of final inspections, approvals, certification, crew training and sea trials before being put into service.

This is the schedule presented to the residents at the community meeting on Oct. 30, at which a project first announced six years ago was marked as a major milestone.

Barkhouse estimated the vessel would be in service in late December or early January.

"Once in use, the new ferry will provide a direct connection between Big Tancook and Blandford," she explained.

"The current schedule is being used as the baseline, with school connections, work, medical access and essential travel being taken into account."

Work continues on the mainland area that will be used for ferry service to Big and Little Tancook Islands. The new ferry and service may be ready by the end of December, but that depends on a number of factors.

Lisa Dagley appointed interim CAO for Town of Lunenburg

By YASMIN DUALE
yasmin.duale@southshorebulletin.ca

LUNENBURG - Lisa Dagley has been named the interim chief administrative officer (CAO) for the Town of Lunenburg as the municipality embarks on the process of finding a permanent replacement.

Dagley, who has been the town's finance director, will act as the interim administrator during the transition period. Dagley will work with council and town staff to carry out the daily operations of the town and to achieve existing priorities.

In a statement to the South Shore Bulletin, Dagley said her first priority is to maintain consistency in all current municipal operations and projects.

"Currently, my priority is to work alongside council and staff to keep the town's current initiatives and operations running smoothly," she said.

The mayor's plans for several projects that will remain her focus throughout her term include the town's $12-million upgrade to its wastewater treatment plant and the electric utility's $4.4-million capital budget for this year.

Dagley said the town's existing staff will play a vital role in keeping services running and the administration running effectively.

"We have an excellent team of town staff who maintain operations and provide services to residents, all of which are directly informed by Council's priorities."

Her former position as a finance director has also given her an understanding of the council's goals and the municipality's organizational structure.

The appointment coincides with the town's search for a permanent CAO. Dagley said that the search is underway and there is no date for when a final decision will be made on a new CAO's hire.

In the interim, she does not anticipate significant changes to the municipality's administrative direction.

"In the meantime, we do not expect any changes to administrative direction," she said. "My goal is to be a dependable source of information for Council during this transition period."

The CAO's primary role is to oversee the town's administrative functions and assist the council in implementing municipal policies and priorities. The role is an important connection between elected officials and municipal staff.

With several big projects on the horizon, continuity of operations will be an important factor as the town seeks to fill the position.

Town of Lunenburg

Oct. 27 council meeting notes

ANNOUNCEMENT: PLANNING SERVICES AGREEMENT WITH MODL

Council was advised that the Town of Lunenburg and the Municipality of the District of Lunenburg (MODL) have finalized an agreement to share planning services. The partnership will provide additional planning expertise and staff capacity, improve coordination of planning and development services, and support continued use of the Clariti permitting system.

PRESENTATION: PARTNERS FOR CARE (WELLTIDE HEALTH HUB)

Council received a presentation from Partners for Care on the Welltide Health Hub, a new community-based health and wellness facility currently under construction in Cookville. The project aims to improve access to health care and social services by bringing providers together in a collaborative setting and reducing barriers to care.

The hub will offer shared clinical space, healthcare navigation services, virtual care technology, and childminding supports, with a focus on helping residents better access available services and resources. The initiative was informed by extensive community consultation and is intended to address local challenges such as healthcare access, service coordination, and the needs of an aging population.

PUBLIC INPUT AND QUESTIONS

Council heard from resident, Townie Anderson, who raised concerns regarding the former train station property, the heritage designation process, and the completed sale of the building. Council reaffirmed its previously approved decision, noting that the property has been transferred to the new owner and that the matter is considered closed. Council indicated that any future matters related to the building should be directed to the current owner.

COUNCIL UPDATE ON COUNCIL MEETING SCHEDULE, VOTE ON DEPUTY MAYOR, 2026/2027

Council reviewed the proposed 2026–2027 Regular Council and Committee of the Whole meeting schedule. Discussion focused on the summer meeting schedule, with council expressing support for holding one Committee of the Whole meeting and one Regular Council meeting in July, with no regular meetings scheduled in August unless required. Staff confirmed the schedule had been reviewed against statutory holidays and noted that budget meetings would be scheduled separately.

Council received a nomination for Councillor Rachel Bailey to serve as Deputy Mayor. No further nominations were received from the floor. Council unanimously approved the appointment of Councillor Bailey as Deputy Mayor and extended congratulations on her appointment.

SUPPORT RQM IN JOINING THE LUNENBURG COUNTY REMO

Council considered a request to support the Region of Queens Municipality joining the Lunenburg County Regional Emergency Management Organization (REMO) as a full participating municipal partner. Members noted the value of regional collaboration and strengthened coordination during emergency situations. Council approved the recommendation in principle and authorized the development of a revised inter-municipal service agreement for future consideration.

Lunenburg District RCMP arrests man for impaired driving

SOUTH SHORE BULLETIN STAFF

WESTERN SHORE - Lunenburg District RCMP arrested a man for driving-related offences after observing erratic and unsafe actions on the road including striking a police vehicle.

On Oct. 30 at approximately 7:10 p.m., an RCMP officer was driving eastbound in a marked police vehicle on Hwy. 3 when a vehicle pulled out abruptly from the left side of the road without yielding to the marked police car, which had the right of way. The officer then observed that the car, a Volkswagen Jetta, was swerving on the road, hitting the right shoulder and crossing the centre line.

When the officer attempted a traffic stop, the Jetta did not stop and accelerated away from the police vehicle. In the interest of public safety, the officer did not pursue the car but shared the vehicle description and direction of travel with other officers in the area.

Officers then located the car on Hwy. 103 and observed it pull over to the shoulder of the road. When an officer stopped a second marked police vehicle in front of the Jetta, the driver accelerated forward slowly and struck the parked police car.

The driver and passenger of the Jetta were then safely arrested. At the time of the arrest, officers observed open alcohol in the vehicle and suspected that the driver was impaired by alcohol. The driver provided a roadside breath sample into an approved screening device which resulted in a "fail."

The driver, a 21-year-old Springfield man, was later released by police pending a future court appearance. He will face driving-related Criminal Code charges and was issued several summary offence tickets under the Nova Scotia Traffic Safety Act.

The passenger was released without charges.

Impaired driving is an emergency. If you spot a suspected impaired driver on the road, call police and provide as much information as possible, including: The location and direction of travel. The licence plate number, and the make, model, and colour of the vehicle and a description of the driver if possible.

MLAs are key for change

The Editor,

The poet Maya Angelou once said, "When a person shows you who they are, believe them the first time." Tim Houston has shown us so many times exactly who he is, that we have got to start believing it.

Demonstrations and letters to this man sadly have little effect. The real sources of the power he wields are the MLAs, and as long as they continue to support him, the outrages will continue.

In Lunenburg West, our MLA has supported offshore drilling, fracking, uranium mining, turning Provincial parks into golf courses, unlimited shoreline development, firing the auditor general without cause, coughing up $1 million to the billionaires who race boats in Halifax Harbour while defunding small libraries and museums, muzzling the press, issuing a sham request for public input on the budget, and, oh yes, data centres. These are just a few of the policies and actions she's lending her support to.

If you think all these are all good ideas, well then you've got the right person on your side. If you don't, however, you have to let her know. Her support is the source of Tim Houston's power and only her actions can change things. If you don't let her know, she'll continue to assume everything is just hunky dory.

Her picture and phone number are on the front page of this paper every week (in a taxpayer funded ad), so give her a jingle if you're not happy with the way things are going. You'll never get through to her, of course, but eventually her staff may. Remember, this regime is governing with the votes of less than 24 per cent of the electorate, and it is the MLAs who enable it. They have to hear from you.

Say no to online gaming

The Editor,

NO NO NO to online gaming in Nova Scotia.

The N.S. government is reviewing the possibility of online gaming to increase revenue.

As a former Deputy Minister of Health in Nova Scotia, I have to state the implications of approving such a program.

There will be more bankrupts, more divorces, more homelessness, more alcoholism, more mental health issues, more physical health issues, more unemployment, more crime and more spousal abuse.

We only have to look at Ontario where since online gaming was approved in 2022 and their experience. Online gaming problems has increased by 300 per cent, ER visits doubled, mental health visits up 300 per cent, suicides have tripled and increased rate of online gaming by students in grades 7 to 12.

There is no other option other than to say NO to online gaming in Nova Scotia.

Kevin McNamara,

Coffee & Conversation project aims to connect South Shore residents one cup at a time

By YASMIN DUALE
yasmin.duale@southshorebulletin.ca

SOUTH SHORE - Residents of Nova Scotia's South Shore are hoping to widen their social circle, one cup of coffee at a time.

The Coffee and Conversation program, founded locally in October by Suzanne Rushton and Maxine Cunningham, gives the participants the opportunity to meet someone with whom they would not have come into contact with in normal daily life.

The idea originated in Comox, B.C., where Cunningham first started up in June. After seeing an opportunity to introduce the concept to the South Shore, Cunningham asked Rushton if she'd like to collaborate in establishing a version local to the South Shore.

Rushton had begun to sound out interest in the project, through a series of Facebook posts about six weeks before the launch. The response was encouraging enough for them to start building the site and signing up participants.

Rushton said the project went live in October once enough people had shown interest and filled in the form.

The matchmaking begins with the completion of a questionnaire, based on your interests, what you would like to share about yourself, and the kinds of people you hope to meet.

'Subscribers' can also include what coffee houses they like, the places they are willing to go to, and the times they can work within. Those who are less particular can select the "surprise me" option.

"A lot of people have found that the platform is highly efficient. Rather than going to coffee shops and hoping to meet someone, you're specifically matched with someone who fits what you've said you're looking for," she said.

Upon enrolling, you'll gets a match one at a time instead of all matches at once. Participants will have a year to complete the matches and are encouraged to submit a little reflection after each encounter before starting a new one.

Rushton stated that the friendship matchmaking service is to introduce people to folks they did not know and thereby widen their circle of acquaintances, and she explained that this wasn't simply a matter of putting them in a café and letting them be introduced by chance.

"It's not just newcomers. We have people who grew up here, as well as people who've lived here for two months, two years or 20 years," Rushton said.

Rushton told us the initial response to the project had been very successful. Nine such meetings attended by 18 have been held so far.

She's taken an active part herself and has completed her first match and moved on to her second.

One participant in Coffee & Conversation wrote, "I arrived knowing very little about my match, but within minutes we were talking like two people who had known each other for years."

The reflection described a conversation that moved between shared interests and personal experiences, with both participants leaving eager to continue getting to know one another.

"I arrived to meet a stranger and left feeling I had made a new friend," the participant wrote.

In all these efforts the response has been very encouraging according to Rushton, with participants expressing a real sense of enthusiasm.

The question of the price has also been asked. People are asking whether they should pay to meet with each other in their own environment.

Liverpool author releases first children's book in collaboration with son

By KEVIN MCBAIN
kevin.mcbain@southshorebulletin.ca

LIVERPOOL – Author Vernon Oickle is well known for his ghost story books and writings about 'things' such as the stories behind Maritime language and Maritime heritage such as unique mailboxes and so much more.

Vernon has written 50 books exploring these various topics, but now for his 51st, that just recently came out, The Adventures of Buster Beagle: Buster Meets the Bullies, in collaboration with his eldest son, Kellen, just in time for Christmas.

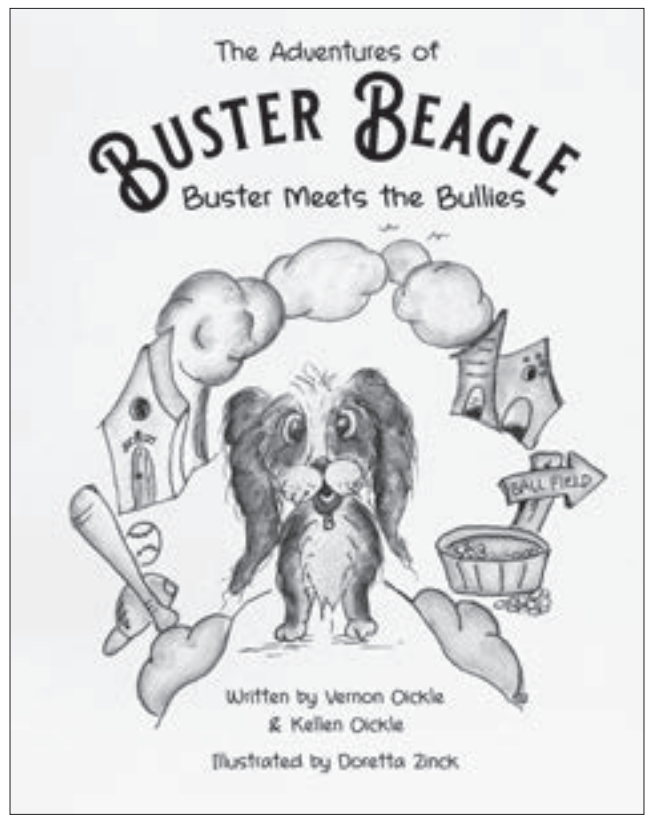

He has wanted to write a book like this for many years and decided that this was the right time to get it out.

"This one is one that I had in my back pocket for well over 20 years," said Vernon. "I've got a lot of books out on all kinds of things and I have several novels out, but writing a children's book is no easy task."

He said that it wasn't easy to take on a whole new genre.

"It's aimed at a very young age, so I had to make sure that it was hitting the right spots and sending the right message."

The book is fully illustrated and this idea goes back when his youngest son, Colby was in school and "because he has challenges, he was bullied as are many kids."

CONTRIBUTED PHOTOS
Vernon Oickle's 51st book, co-written with his son, Kellen - The Adventures of Buster Beagle: Buster Meets the Bullies, is now on sale.

"As a parent you see your child struggling and you want to do the best you can and so I was inspired," he said, adding there are many books out there about bullying, but he believes that the way to instill respect for others is to start getting that message out there at an early age.

Colby's older brother Kellen was protective of his brother growing up, which led to his input on the project. Both are now in their 30s.

The story uses a dog to convey the message.

The Oickle's had a family pet, named Sport, and he and Colby were good friends and that relationship inspired the use of a 'dog family' to tell the story.

"We were playing around with the idea of using a dog to convey the message about bullying. Not because we had one as a family pet, but we know that kids respond lovingly to pets and most kids like dogs," he said.

The main character of the book is Buster Beagle who lives in Doggyville with his family. Throughout the story, Buster encounters some neighbourhood bullies who are pretty tough on him.

Buster's mother encourages him to help the bullies understand how hurtful their bullying is to him.

"That's sort of the message. Bullies have to understand that their actions and their words are painful. Not everyone is created equal and we explain this in a positive way with the book," said Vernon.

"I think to me and Kellen, if our message can connect with one child out there, if they can relate to Buster's story, if we can have a positive impact on just a small group of children, we will have accomplished our objective. I hope people will read about Buster's adventure and understand and talk to their children and grandchildren about a need to embrace everybody, be tolerant and understanding to others."

Books are available now through many bookstores and through Amazon.

United Arab Emirates troupe big winners as curtain falls on 17th Liverpool International Theatre Festival

By RICK CONRAD
Local Journalism Initiative Reporter
rickconradssb@gmail.com

LIVERPOOL – The Liverpool International Theatre Festival wrapped up its 17th production on Oct. 18, with organizers cheering higher audience numbers despite fewer theatre troupes who made the trip to the Astor Theatre.

"I would say overall, it's been a very successful festival," said festival chair Jean Robinson.

"The positive feedback that we're getting from the audiences, as well as the wonderful notes that we're receiving from troupe members as they get back home or as they were leaving the festival hub, saying that this is one of the best festivals and they love to come to Liverpool for the kind of warm welcome that they receive here, the openness of the people here in our community and as well as the quality of what goes on our stage."

Nine festival awards were handed out over the five-day event to groups from the United Arab Emirates, Italy, Wales, Mexico, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

Switzerland's Theatre Studio Beloe won the People's Choice Award, presented by Nova Scotia Lt.-Gov. Mike Savage, for their evocative play, Break the Silence.

The Eva Moore Outstanding Director Award, named in honour of the late Nova Scotia theatre icon and LITF's first artistic director, went to Mohammed Bassiouny of the UAE troupe Dream Team for Morina (Where Are You?).

The festival occurs every two years, as organizers send out a general international call to all community theatre groups. Since 1992, dozens of troupes from almost every continent have performed on the Astor stage.

For LITF's co-artistic directors Neil Maidman and Vic Mills, who hail from Wales, it's a testament to the artists' commitment that they make the trek to Liverpool, some returning for multiple festivals.

"I think the whole thing of just connecting with troops from all around the world, in the two years that they're left to it," Mills says. "And when you're building connections, seeing if people would be able to come, seeing if they'd be a good fit.

And then, when people actually arrive, you feel you kind of already know them. You know, you've been emailing and speaking to them on FaceTime or whatever happens to be. And it's a kind of two-year journey to get here. And I love that as much as I like being here, that kind of thing, discovering a new company."

Coffee & Conversation project aims to connect South Shore residents one cup at a time

Rushton explained, "If you go back and read the comments, you'll see people asking why they couldn't just meet for free and pointing out that there's no need to pay for something like this. That's 100 per cent true. There's no obligation for anyone to join, pay or participate."

The matching process does, however, offer something that goes beyond what you can find in other methods of establishing connections.

The long-term aim of the endeavour is to reach 1,000 participants, but in the immediate future, its goal is to develop the local community.

Residents of the South Shore who would like to participate in the arrangement can visit SouthShoreCoffees.world and register.

Local boxer to compete at nationals

By KEVIN MCBAIN
kevin.mcbain@southshorebulletin.ca

KEVIN MCBAIN PHOTOS

Boxer Justin Taylor, who has been boxing for less than two years recently won the provincial 75 kg title and is moving on to compete at the national championships.

BRIDGEWATER – Boxer Justin Taylor will represent Nova Scotia at the national championships being held in Membertou starting on Nov. 17.

Taylor, defeated Andrew Thomas from the Tribal Boxing Club in the provincial championship on Oct. 17 in Stellarton to claim the title.

Co-Coach David Penny (owner and trainer DMC), who coaches along with Peter Stuart, said that Taylor did well in what was his first provincial title fight.

"Justin did really well. He stopped him in the third round. He just dominated the fight from the bell. It wasn't really close," said Penny, who added that Thomas's coach threw in the towel to stop the fight before the referee could get an eight count in.

"We had a fight plan for him and it worked perfectly."

Taylor, 33, comes from a mixed martial arts background and has only been training at DMC for a bit less than two years.

"He has come a long way. He comes from a mixed martial arts background and sometimes that's a hindrance, because these are two totally different styles," he said.

One of the big things that he has improved on is his footwork.

"I was a stick in the mud when I came here," he said. "But now it's like I can float like a butterfly. It's so much easier," said Taylor.

There are many 'keys' to success when you hit the national level, such as preparation; working out a game plan, but having the ability to adjust; trust between coach/athlete and confidence in yourself.

Taylor said despite having just 10 bouts under his belt, he says that "confidence for me is never an issue. I'm ready. I was born ready. These guys have to watch out."

Penny said they have been working hard on the technical side of things and making sure that Taylor understands how to land the most points in a boxing ring...what makes a boxer successful.

They have also been training hard and focusing on one aspect at a time, until he gets it down and travelling to different clubs to take on different boxers that he may have never seen before – that may be different heights, a bit different reach, left and right-handed boxers, to prepare him for anything.

"Nationals are different than a normal bout. Preparation is stressful. You do want that bit of pressure, but at the same time you have to control everything so you can perform in the ring," said Penny who has had many boxers compete and win at the national level.

At nationals, he will be in the 75 kg weight division and a list of attending boxers will be put out there, prior to the competition, but boxers don't know who they will face until the start of the event, when names are drawn.

"When Justin came to me, he was hard to coach. He was coming from a mixed martial arts background and people I know from that background have attitudes," said Penny.

"I had to sit down with him on a bench at one point and I said there's the door, if you are not listening, then why are you here. I told him I can make him a champion if he listens. We are halfway there. I know he has the stuff, the toughness, the will and determination. He's a little hard-headed, but he is tough physically and mentally and that's the attitude you want."

SPONSORS

Taylor and Penny are hoping to gather more sponsors for the team as they approach the national championships.

You can contact Penny through e-mail at davesmultisports@gmail.com or stop in at the gym located on King Street in Bridgewater.

Taylor said that he does have banners that sponsors can be put on, they will advertise the sponsorship on Facebook or hand out business cards.

Are you connected with someone buried at Hillside Cemetery?

Hillside Cemetery is the final resting place of several members of the community, estimated to be more than 230, who died while living at the Lunenburg Municipal Hospital (County Home), which was located on the site of the current Municipal Activity Recreation Complex (MARC) at 33 Leary Fraser Road, Dayspring, NS.

The Municipality of the District of Lunenburg wants to know if any family members or relatives of those buried at Hillside Cemetery are interested in a way to honour their loved one by name. Your interest will help us decide whether to move ahead with this potential memorial project.

Local social enterprise drives disability inclusion and community connection

CONTRIBUTED STORY

CHESTER - Located in a grey house just off Hwy. 3 on Central Street in the village of Chester, The Shops on Central – an enterprise by Bonny Lea Farms – proves that small business can be a powerful engine for social inclusion.

Comprising the Garden Café, The Market, and Bonny's Boutique Thrift Shop, the social enterprise currently employs nine adults living with intellectual disabilities, offering accessible, paid work while filling a vital niche on the South Shore.

"Having meaningful work experiences is essential for everyone. The Shops on Central offers hands-on, fulfilling roles for our team," says Kira Curtis, Employment Services Co-ordinator at Bonny Lea Farm. "It not only highlights the meaningful contributions our team makes to the local economy, but it also models what an inclusive community should look like – one that welcomes and values everyone."

Designed with accessibility in mind, featuring ramped access, automatic door, and spacious layout, The Shops on Central re-invests all proceeds directly into participant wages and Bonny Lea's day and employment skills programs. Visitors can enjoy locally sourced treats, shop curated current and vintage fashion finds and browse products crafted by Bonny Lea and other social enterprises, as well as local goods.

ABOUT BONNY LEA FARM

Founded in 1973, Bonny Lea Farm empowers adults living with intellectual disabilities to lead self-directed lives through 11 community living homes, an employment skills center, social enterprises, and day program.

New Big Tancook vehicle ferry expected to enter service by early 2027

This schedule will also take into account the extra travel time between Blandford and Chester for the first and last trips of the day and it will be supplemented where necessary by the addition of other crossings, but it will be impossible to fix the definitive departure times before the sea-trials.

The new vessel will provide the islanders with several improvements in transport, particularly in the case of people who need to go to the mainland to reach essential services and transport larger goods.

For those living on the islands, the ferry will be a more convenient and regular connection with the services of health, education and other amenities on the mainland.

"The vessel has a larger capacity that can carry vehicles, freight, fuel, firewood, building supplies and other large items," Barkhouse went on to say.

This new car ferry will also support additional road maintenance on Big Tancook Island, improving road conditions and safety for residents.

The transition from the old ship to the new one is made with some uncertainty as to when it will arrive and be put in commission.

The existing ferry, the William G. Ernst, cannot operate after Dec. 18; the province has outlined temporary arrangements if the new ferry is not ready by that time.

For the time being, the Scotian, a boat operating in the port of Chester, would serve to transport vehicles between Blandford and Big Tancook. The service for the transport of passengers from Little Tancook to the port was to be continued by a separate boat.

The question of the wharf is of special interest to the residents of Little Tancook, whose wharves need repair and are not adequate to accommodate the new ferry. Provincial officials have discussed the potential of a weekly barge service for the transport of essential goods, and the use of floats to facilitate access.

For the inhabitants of Big Tancook, the arrival of this new ferry is a welcome addition to their long wait for a better connection to the mainland.

Clark's Harbour Haunted House returns with record attendance

By WANDA ATKINSON
For the South Shore Bulletin

CLARK'S HARBOUR - Always an annual Cape Sable Island Halloween tradition, the haunted house returned to Clark's Harbour after a one-year absence. The four fright nights attracted a record number of attendees to the clown themed spooky carnival which took place in 13 decorated rooms. Over 1,200 brave souls entered and safely exited the Shipwreck Fear Factory Haunted House.

The event opened with a kid and family friendly night on Monday, Oct. 26. Activity and treat stations were set up throughout the various areas and corridors. Children went away with a variety of goodies including balloons contorted into animal creatures, flowers and swords, along with various Halloween themed trinkets and bites.

The 'scares' were in full force for the three adult nights on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Approximately 30 actors took part, making for a night of flibbertigibbet entertainment and mayhem. The creepy music was punctuated with screams as event goers tried to navigate their way through the eerie scenes.

Plans are already underway for next year's event and the crew are thinking of devious ways they can unexpectedly frighten anyone who dares to enter the reimagined Clark's Harbour Community Hall.

It is a slow time of year for birding

JAMES HIRTLE
Bird Notes

The past week has been a slow one where I did not break 20 species in any one day, while out birding. Up until Nov. 4 I had only seen 23 species for the month. To compare to other years I was at 49 in 2025 and in 2024 47. For the month of Nov. in 2025 I had 86 species and in 2024 69 species.

On Oct. 29 Wilma Clancy found an orange-crowned warbler at Fort Point in LaHave. Eric Mills saw an eastern bluebird in Kingsburg on Oct. 30. Logan Moore spotted purple sandpipers at Baccaro on Oct. 31. The best birds still around would be some greater yellowlegs and on Oct. 31 there were still 17 black-bellied plovers at Crescent Beach in Lunenburg County.

Bruce Allen and Blair Hodgeman reported four buffleheads at Shaws Island on Nov. 1. Numbers are much greater than that where I had seen groups of between 70 to 100 between then and Nov. 4 at various locations.

Eric Mills sighted a solitary sandpiper along Brick Hill Road in

A Great Blue Heron found at Miller's Point Peace Park Oct. 30.

Second Peninsula. He also had two pectoral sandpipers, two semi-palmated plovers and a black-bellied plover at Kingsburg Beach on that day.

On Nov. 1 Mark Dennis reported a red-bellied woodpecker and an orange-crowned warbler in his Clam Point yard on Cape Sable Island. On Nov. 2 Carrie Ann Thomas spotted six American pipits at Broad Cove.

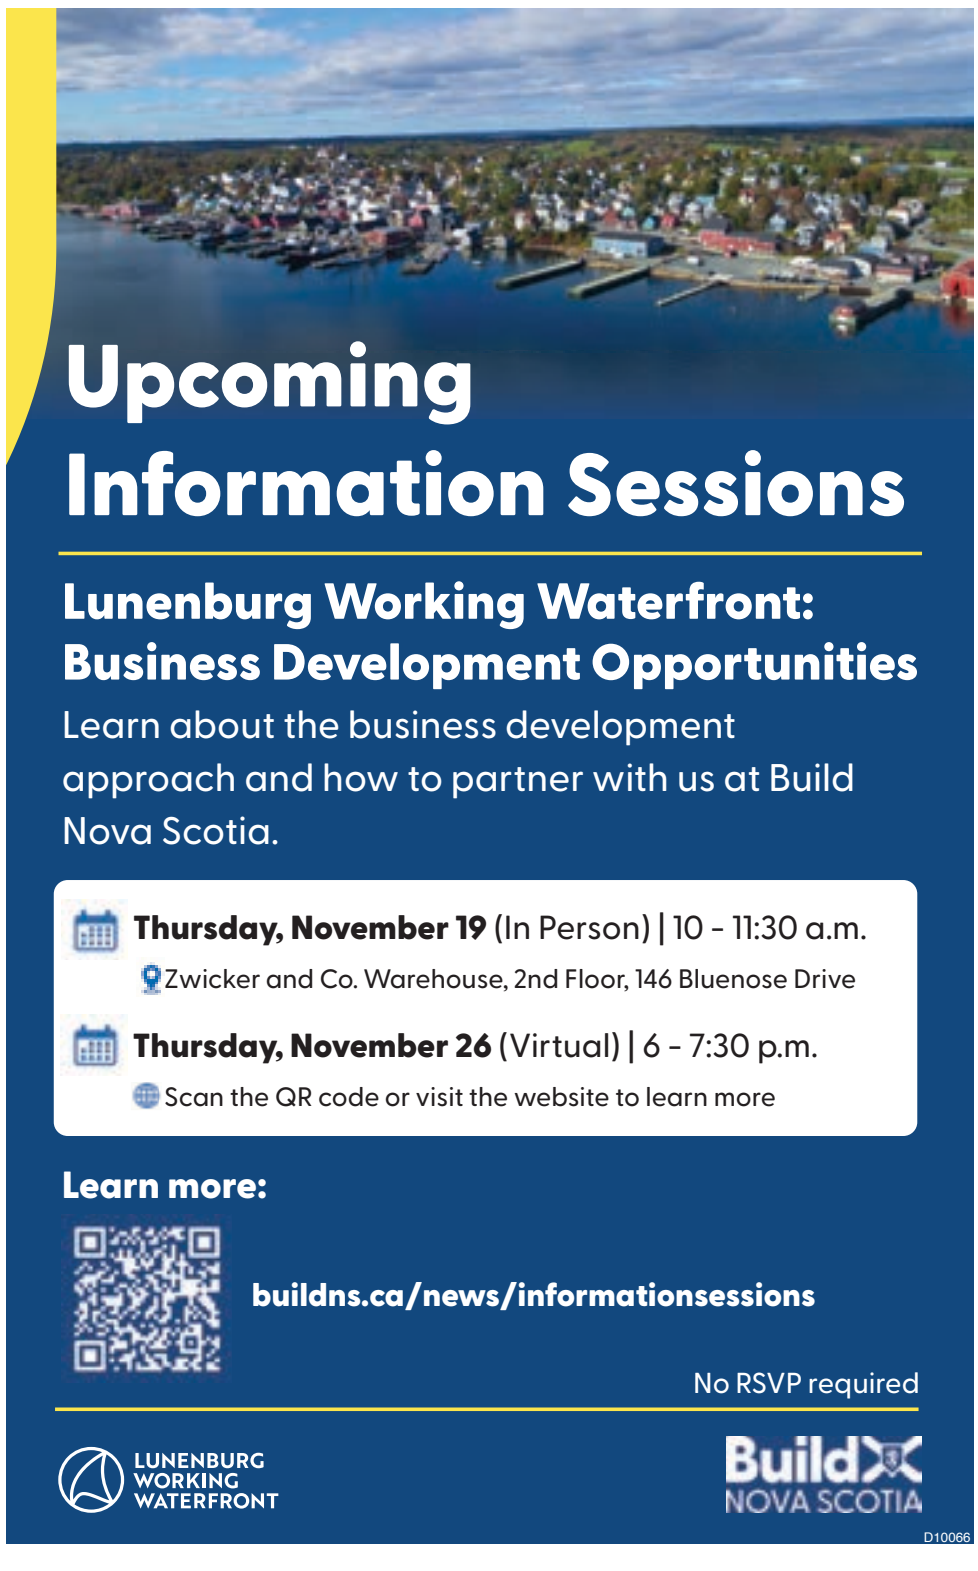

There had been an American wigeon hanging around at Crescent Beach (Lunenburg County). As per Ethan Sarty it was still present on Nov. 3. Mark Dennis watched a few razorbills, lots of red-throated loons a dovekie and an Atlantic puffin as they flew past at Daniel's Head on Cape Sable Island.

As per the Nova Scotia rare bird alert over the past week there was pink-footed goose, field sparrow, tropical kingbird and a possible Ross's goose (possibly a hybrid, but yet to be determined).

Halifax Municipality had lark sparrow and yellow-throated warbler, yellow-breasted chat and four orange-crowned warblers. Dominic Cormier counted over 20,000 dovekies flying past Chebucto Head. The Northeast Mainland reported northern shrike and white-winged crossbill. The Northwest Mainland saw greater white-fronted goose, snow goose, sandhill cranes and cackling goose.

Yarmouth and Digby Counties as usual had some great stuff like eastern bluebirds, black-legged kittiwakes, Hudsonian godwit, eastern phoebe, common yellowthroat, Wilson's and orange-crowned warblers, yellow-headed blackbird and black-throated green warbler. The valley produced summer tanager and yellow-throated warbler.

What does control look like to you

SUSANNE BECK
Reality Check

You may have noticed that the word "control" frequently shows up in these columns. There's what we can control, what we can't control, how we deal with things we can control, what to do about things we can't. That's a lot of control, or at least a lot of thinking about control!

Occasionally, it's good to take a step back and ask some fundamental questions. What does control look like? When do we have it? How do we know?

Back in the early days when Dr. Glasser was developing his theory, he didn't call it Choice Theory. No. He called it Control Theory. Why did he change it? I can't say for sure but it's possible that "Control Theory" sounds coercive; that is, it could be interpreted by some as "learn this theory and you'll be able to control people!"

Of course, that wasn't the goal of Glasser's work at all. The banner on his book, Choice Theory, states "Choosing the life you want to live and staying close to the people you need." Doesn't promote controlling them, does it?

So, what does control mean? What does it look like?

For some of us, control looks like the opposite of chaos. Having an orderly life means that life is in control, and that is indeed the picture that some of us want. When our homes, our plans, our schedules, our relationships are all in order, that's "under control." It may not mean perfect order, but it's manageable order. When we perceive that we have the level of order in our lives that we want, we're satisfied.

However, as we know, different people are different and want different things. Some people prefer to live with a spirit of "you never know what will happen." They enjoy the excitement that can come with chaos, for example, when they experience the thrill of finding their keys after having no idea where they were. I'm not keen on that kind of excitement myself, but as I said, different people are different.

The basic needs suggested in Choice Theory include "power." It's a word often associated with having power/control over others, but it need not be that at all. While I often associate the power need with recognition, I believe that having control over our lives also plays a role in satisfying that need. To that end, developing our self-discipline, creating and building habits that we want to have, is control of a most helpful type.

What does being "in control" mean to you? Does it mean having control over what you'll do today? Control over your time and your money could be important. You may want control over what and who you'll see, where you'll be, what food you eat, what books you read. Perhaps control simply means knowing where your possessions are and who has access to them.

For you, control may look more like a specific internal state; one could call it self-control. You may perceive control as having control over your emotions, your thoughts, your body.

It's worth thinking about what control looks like for you. When you have a clear picture, you have something to aim for. You can take concrete actions that lead you toward getting control. You can know when you are making progress. Likewise, you can detect when things are sliding out of control and take action.

My suggestion is to think about questions such as, "Do I perceive that my life is under control? If my life was under control, what would that look like? What would be different from how it is today? Let me know what you find at choice@focusonclarity.com or by mail c/o South Shore Bulletin.

To your choices! ~ Susanne ~

Before you leave them behind, give cats a chance at a safer future

ASHLEY KIPPERS
SHAID Tree Animal Shelter General Manager

Every year, animal shelters and rescue organizations see the consequences of unwanted litters and cats being left to fend for themselves outdoors. Sometimes, people find themselves in difficult circumstances and are no longer able to care for a pet. Other times, an unexpected litter of kittens leaves an owner unsure of what to do next. Whatever the situation, one thing is important to remember: abandoning a domestic cat or kittens outside to fend for themselves is not a solution.

Domestic cats may have natural instincts for hunting and exploring, but that does not mean they are equipped to survive independently. A cat accustomed to being fed and cared for by people can struggle to find reliable food, safe shelter and protection from the elements. Kittens are particularly vulnerable, as they depend on appropriate nutrition, warmth and care to grow and develop. Outdoor life also exposes cats to traffic, predators, disease and other dangers. Many die horribly.

If you can no longer care for your cat, or find yourself with an unexpected litter of kittens, please reach out to SHAID Animal Shelter or another rescue organization before making any decisions. Even if space is limited or assistance cannot be arranged immediately, starting the conversation gives everyone a better opportunity to find a safe solution. Never assume that abandoning an animal outdoors is its best chance.

One of the cats currently waiting for a home is Jester, a handsome three-year-old boy with plenty of personality and energy. Jester can be shy when meeting new people, but once he becomes comfortable, his friendly nature starts to shine.

Jester is looking for an experienced, patient owner who understands that building trust takes time. He enjoys being active and would benefit from plenty of interactive play, enrichment and opportunities to satisfy his curious nature.

He could share a home with an active, playful and tolerant cat, or live as an only pet provided he receives lots of attention and playtime. For someone who enjoys an energetic companion and appreciates a cat who needs a little time to come out of his shell, Jester could be a wonderful match.

Currently waiting for a home is Jester, a handsome three-year-old boy with plenty of personality and energy. Jester can be shy when meeting new people, but once he becomes comfortable, his friendly nature starts to shine.

SHAID will also be welcoming the community to its 40th Annual Open House on Saturday, Nov. 14, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 950 Mullock Road in Whynotts Settlement. Visitors can tour the shelter, meet some of its residents, browse Crumpet's Closet, enjoy a barbecue and bake sale, and pick up SHAID calendars and merchandise. It is a chance to celebrate four decades of animal care and learn more about the work happening locally.

Forty years of caring for animals has brought plenty of changes, but the need for safe places, responsible homes and community involvement remains. Whether it is reaching out for help before a difficult situation becomes a crisis, sharing information about an adoptable cat like Jester, or stopping by the open house, every connection helps keep the conversation about animal welfare going.

Most importantly, if you are struggling to care for an animal, please ask for help. A phone call can be the beginning of a much better outcome than abandoning a cat or kitten behind to face the unknown.

The question I've been asking leaders for years

STEPHANIE MILLER VINCENT
Business Moments

Week after week, this column has been about leadership in our owner-operated businesses: the shops, restaurants, inns and offices that keep the communities running.

I've written about what happens between the people who lead and the people who do the work and what that means for the customer at the counter. This week is a little different. I want to tell you about the book that grew out of those same conversations.

The first time I held it, it wasn't a book at all. It was almost 300 loose pages from the printer in Liverpool, printed so I could proofread on paper. I stood on the same street where, in 1985, I took my first job in this industry at the Cheer Wagon, pouring 15-cent fountain Pepsi and handing out ice cream with wooden spoons.

Most of it was written at home in Port Mouton: in the sunroom, on the deck, more than a few times on the beach, with coffee or water beside me and a lot of voices in my head. The servers, cooks, housekeepers and managers I've worked beside for more than 30 years, and every story they trusted me with.

I told no one but my husband until I was done writing. Not friends, not former colleagues, not even the people whose stories shaped its pages. Some part of me was still bracing to be judged. So when the finished copy arrived, it was just the two of us standing in our house, and I was giddy.

THE QUESTION BEHIND THE TITLE

The book is called What They Say When You Walk Away: The Hospitality Leadership Playbook for Turning Culture into Guest Loyalty and Growth.

The title is the question I've been asking leaders for years. Not what your team says to your face, but what they say after you've left the room. When those match, you've built something that lasts. When they don't, the gap shows up in turnover, in online reviews and in the customer who quietly never comes back.

Everyone says nobody wants to work in hospitality anymore. I don't buy it. Hospitality doesn't have a shortage of people shortage. It has a leadership reputation problem. The people who want this work are choosing very carefully who they work for, and people who would be brilliant at it have heard enough horror stories to never apply. The same is true in any business where your team's experience becomes your customer's.

A PLAYBOOK, NOT A LECTURE

It's the book I wish someone had handed me. It's built from opening 27 restaurants, leading 777 people across 13 restaurants in a Louisiana casino resort, coming home to Nova Scotia, and plenty of mistakes along the way. Every chapter ends with questions to sit with and something you can try on Monday, your Monday.

A few weeks ago, a woman who once led a hotel here on the South Shore, and now leads a team in PEI, read a few pages and ordered five more copies for her leaders. Now they read a chapter, then meet to talk about it. That's exactly what I hoped for. A book about leadership shouldn't sit on one desk.

WHERE TO FIND IT

What They Say When You Walk Away is available in paperback and on Kindle through Amazon and at smillervision.com. You can also reach out to arrange a pickup or find me at local Chamber and South Shore Economic Alliance events, where I'm always happy to sign a copy. Copies for your whole team? Just ask.

Writing it was the beginning. So, this week, before you leave at the end of the day, ask yourself the question that started it all:

What do they say when you walk away?

MEMORIAMS

SNYDER: in loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Hazel, who passed away November. 16, 2025.
Our hearts were broken when we had to say goodbye
But we are so fortunate to have had you in our lives
And all the precious memories that hold a special place in our hearts forever.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by daughter, Susan; grandson, Graham, and Lisa.

S. Mabel Nass Snyder
In memory of my grandmother/mother who passed away November. 13, 1999.
It has been 27 years since you had to leave
But you are remembered every day.
Love Bryan Naas & family.

LENIHAN: In loving memory of my husband, Lester, who passed away November. 10, 2008.
They say there is no reason,
They say time will heal,
Neither time, nor reason will change the way I feel.
Gone are the days we used to share,
But in my heart you are always there.
The gates of memories will never close,
I miss you more than anyone knows.
Love and miss you every day,
Until we meet again.
Always and forever loved, wife, Dorothy.

United Arab Emirates troupe big winners as curtain falls on 17th Liverpool International Theatre Festival

"You have different cultures, different religions, different languages," Maidman says, "but they all have theatre in common.

And I think that is the biggest draw in all of this."

This year's festival, which gives audiences unique opportunities to meet with the troupes and discuss their plays, also gave performers more time to explore Liverpool and the rest of Queens County.

"They make friendships so quickly and there's something lovely about that," Mills says, adding that LITF is one of the rare international festivals and competitions where participants root for one another.

"Here, it feels that everybody is willing everybody else to be brilliant, and to support each other."

Robinson said the volunteer organizing committee will take a break and then start planning the next festival, expected in 2028. She said one of the priorities will be to sustain and grow their team of about 50 volunteers.

Here is a list of award winners, including the winners of the special artistic director awards. Each of the main award-winners gets a custom-made JesterFish, the LITF mascot, from Liverpool stained glass artist Scot Slessor.

Outstanding International Production: Morina (Where Are You?) — Dream Team, Khaled Hafex, Mohammed Bassiouny and Doaa Salim (UAE)

Best Original Script: Chiara Fumanti, The Extraordinary Life of a Rat Racer — Stage Leftovers (Italy)

Outstanding Visual Presentation: Nest — Hoosh Theater (Netherlands)

Outstanding Actor in a Female Supporting Role: Vannia Maldonado, Leyendas — En Movimiento Teatro (Mexico)

Outstanding Actor in a Male Supporting Role: Grant Crawley, A Kind of Vesuvius — Players Theatre (Wales)

Outstanding Actor in a Female Lead Role: Chiara Fumanti, The Extraordinary Life of a Rat Racer — Stage Leftovers (Italy)

Outstanding Actors in Male Lead Roles: Khaled Hafex and Mohammed Bassiouny, Morina (Where Are You?) — Dream Team (UAE)

The South Shore Remembers

Production takes watchers back to 1940s

By KEVIN MCBAIN
kevin.mcbain@southshorebulletin.ca

SOUTH QUEENS – Director Ashley Rose-Goodwin wants to take people on a journey to the 1940s and what it was like to live on the South Shore during wartime.

The South Shore of Nova Scotia contributed plenty to WWII much of which may not be well known.

Rose-Goodwin weaves together stories and music from the era together to form the production, The South Shore Remembers: Queens, Shelburne and Yarmouth in WWII.

The event will take place Nov. 15 at the Milton Memorial Hall (a key cog to the South Shore wartime effort). Cost is just $10 – cash at the door only – with all proceeds going to the hall.

"It's really highlighting what it was like to live here during that time and what the importance of the homefront in the South Shore during World War II," she said.

"Even though we weren't attacked, we were a big part of supporting the soldiers while they were away and what it was like to live in blackouts, what it was like to have to have the lights out off at night, so the enemy couldn't see the boats leaving our harbour."

She has incorporated many members of the community including Queens County Mayor Scott Christian, Joe Lyndon, The Sea Soul Singers and cast members from the Mersey Rose Theatre Company.

Area residents including Alex Doggett and Peter Anthony will share some of the stories as related to the wartime effort.

Rose-Goodwin said this is something she has wanted to do for several years now after being inspired by a show she was a part of in the 2000s.

"I have a big place in my heart for 1940s music. I was introduced to it when I went to Yarmouth Regional High School. History teacher George Egan, who was very passionate about the history of Yarmouth, especially with the RCAF bases," she said.

"He started doing musicals back in the '90s and what he wanted to do is educate not only the students, but educated Yarmouth citizens in general about the importance of remembering the WWII veterans, what happened during that time and how Yarmouth was so tied to that."

When she was in Grade 12 in the 2000s, he was done doing the project, because he was ready to retire.

But she and others convinced him to do the show again. He loved it so much that he ended up doing the show again for five more years and took the show around the province and even over to Europe.

She said it was so great to be a part of the production and going overseas was an incredible time where she got to meet so many veterans and how they loved and respected Canadians. It was during this time, that she also found out that her grandmother that she had never met, had served on the RCAF base, making that connection even stronger. Back to the production...

The story kicks off with the SS Liverpool Packet that would normally carry newspaper to different locations, then during the 1940s it started carrying wartime materials, and it was torpedoed just off Nova Scotia.

"It starts with that story and some of the survivors on that ship were also from Liverpool, Shelburne and Barrington. Then the story goes to Caledonia, Port Mouton, Brooklyn, Shelburne and Yarmouth," she said.

"The story is also not just about what the adults are doing, but what the teens are doing as well."

Rose-Goodwin said it is really nice to bring so many different age groups into the production. She said there are kids as young as 12 being on stage with seniors.

"I really love bridging that gap and having them work together on the show."

All the people working on the different components have not met yet, but will come together on the morning of Nov. 15.

She hopes to hold this concert every year, adding to it each year and possibly taking the show on the road, maybe a fundraising opportunity.

"There maybe families that come to see the show that may recognize some of the names of their family members...maybe next year they will want to share," she said.

"It's really about remembering and education. Sometimes WWII gets lost a bit. Kids and maybe some adults don't realize what a difference that we made to the war and how supportive we were."

She is also hooked on the songs, as are her students, as previously mentioned.

"When I introduced my teams and my studio to these songs, they instantly fell in love. There's like a classic feeling to those songs that are a bit theatrical in nature. There's so much feeling and they connect easily."
